Police Detective: 50% of Sudden Infant Deaths Happened Within 48 Hours of Vaccination — But No One Is Allowed to Say It

In an interview with Steve Kirsch, a former police detective claimed that about half of the sudden infant death cases she investigated showed the child had received a vaccination in the previous 48 hours. But coroners never mentioned vaccines on the death certificates, and doctors have been trained to gaslight parents, she said.

A former police detective claimed that around 50% of the 250 sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS) cases she investigated over seven years happened within 48 hours after the infant received a vaccine. About 70% happened within one week.

She argued this timing proves vaccines are behind SIDS because the correlation would not be observed if the deaths were occurring randomly.

The detective, who worked in a "major city" of over 300,000 people and identified herself simply as "Jennifer," shared her story with Steve Kirsch in a video and Substack article published last week.

Kirsch, a Silicon Valley entrepreneur and philanthropist and executive director of the Vaccine Safety Research Foundation, said he contacted the police station where Jennifer worked and verified her identity.

The detective's information is independently verifiable in the police records "for any health authority who has any doubts," Kirsch said, adding that he is actively working with the police department to make the statistics public.

Describing her department's policy to "leave no stone unturned" when investigating sudden infant deaths, Jennifer wrote:

> "Standard police policy was to ask about any pharmaceuticals … and ask every single thing that a person was doing in the moments, hours, days and weeks leading up to their death …
> "So, with a baby: 'When was the last time he saw a doc? Was he healthy? Any meds or shots? What has he been eating? What kind of soap do you wash them with?' …
> "The coroner we had to often report to was especially a stickler on everything that went into that kid, food- and drug-wise."

Dr. Elizabeth Mumper, president and CEO of The Rimland Center For Integrative Medicine, told The Defender, "Many parental reports about a baby dying suddenly start with the phrase, 'He just was at the pediatrician's office — they said he was healthy.'"

"If there were no correlations between vaccines and SIDS, then sudden death cases would be evenly distributed throughout the month," Mumper said.

"Instead, we see clusters of unexpected deaths in the first week after shots are given. Reports from police officers and first responders are supported by this published evidence," she added.

Vaccines never mentioned in coroner reports

Despite the comprehensive data gathering required by the coroner, Jennifer told Kirsch vaccines were never listed as the cause of death — or even mentioned — in the final reports.

It took a couple of years before she learned why. "It's because it's a pharmaceutical that doesn't carry liability," she said, referring to the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986.

That the coroner's report would mention parents "put Johnson & Johnson baby lotion on the baby the day before they died" but never mention vaccines is what got her "triggered," she said.

"Nobody in my office had an answer," Jennifer said. "I'm like, 'Why isn't the medical examiner putting this on here?' And they were like, 'I don't know.' … They thought it was as crazy as I did."

The Defender recently reported on the case of a Maine couple whose 7-week-old child died the day after receiving multiple vaccines. The state medical examiner refused to investigate vaccines as a possible cause, but a later toxicology report confirmed the infant had toxic levels of aluminum in his blood.

The conspiracy of silence does not end with coroner's offices, according to Jennifer, but extends to law enforcement policy.

Jennifer told Kirsch about her husband attending a conference for police investigators in St. Louis, where the presenters never mentioned vaccines as a possible cause of SIDS.

"There's always … some sort of symptom of suffocation or brain bleed associated with a SIDS stamp on a death report or an autopsy report," she said.

However, in side conversations at the conference, detectives would admit the connection. "It's kind of a common thing for detectives who investigate SIDS deaths to know at least SIDS is a kind of false diagnosis," she said.

Kirsch shared the story of forensic police detective Helen Grus from Ottawa, Canada, who is being prosecuted for investigating the link between sudden infant death and vaccines.

Grus is facing misconduct hearings for allegedly accessing files of infant death cases in which she was not previously involved.

According to a Rebel News report, Grus was investigating reports that the sudden infant death rate had increased by a factor of two or three after the introduction of the COVID-19 vaccines.

The detective was subjected to a smear campaign casting her "as the problem, rather than the vaccines," according to Kirsch.

Grus also was suspended without pay for refusing to take the COVID-19 vaccine and for questioning the usefulness of masks.

AAP trains docs to gaslight parents so they 'don't start questioning vaccinations'

When Jennifer and her husband, who also is a police detective, were shopping around for a pediatrician, they were upfront about their concerns regarding the SIDS-vaccine connection.

They eventually found a pediatrician who, after hearing their observations of infant deaths from their investigations, "didn't even change expression," Jennifer recalled. "He's like, 'I'm not shocked at all.'"

He said, "You have a really valid reason to not want to do this [vaccinations] with your kids. And I support whatever decision you make," she told Kirsch.

But the pediatrician told them that the American Academy of Pediatrics "actually trained them to talk to parents so that they don't start questioning vaccinations," she said.

"He started so many sentences with, 'According to the AAP, I'm not supposed to say this, but I don't lie to my patients,'" she recalled.

Kirsch pointed out the difficulty doctors face when they believe vaccinations are necessary to prevent diseases like polio and meningitis.

If doctors admitted to the connection between vaccines and SIDS, he said, "that would destroy the public confidence in the vaccination program. People wouldn't get vaccinated."

"So we'll basically keep our mouth shut about that," doctors reason to themselves, Kirsch speculated, and "minimize the vaccine hesitancy by telling parents that it wasn't the vaccine, these things just happen."

"That's how they're trained," he said.

Dr. Paul Thomas, pediatrician and author of "The Vaccine-Friendly Plan: Dr. Paul's Safe and Effective Approach to Immunity and Health-from Pregnancy Through Your Child's Teen Years," told The Defender, "Pediatricians don't recognize the link nor would they consider SIDS vaccine-related. They just don't know what they don't know."

AAP, in its treatment of sleep-related infant deaths, does not mention vaccines as a possible cause of SIDS, instead claiming it is best explained by the following "triple risk model":

> "SIDS occurs when an infant with intrinsic vulnerability (often manifested by impaired arousal, cardiorespiratory, and/or autonomic responses) undergoes an exogenous trigger event (e.g., exposure to an unsafe sleeping environment) during a critical developmental period.
>
> "The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends a safe sleep environment to reduce the risk of all sleep-related deaths. This includes supine positioning; use of a firm, noninclined sleep surface; room sharing without bed sharing; and avoidance of soft bedding and overheating."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) states that "studies have found that vaccines do not cause and are not linked to SIDS."

The Public Health Collaborative, citing Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, states that "the condition's exact cause is unknown," but that "numerous studies have shown that vaccines do not cause SIDS."

'No other viable explanation'

A review of the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS) and the medical literature between 1990-2019 analyzing the correlation between vaccines and SIDS, found that "of all cases post-vaccination, 75% occurred within seven days.

Kirsch noted this number is a close match to Jennifer's estimate of around 70% over her 250 cases.

"This is impossible if the vaccines aren't causing SIDS," Kirsch said. "There is simply no other viable explanation for the association," adding "But of course, you won't get your paper published if you say that."

Thomas told The Defender, "The studies showing that most SIDS cases are in the first 3-10 days after a vaccine, make it clear that the vaccines are killing babies."

Thomas said he did not witness SIDS cases in his pediatric practice, likely because none of his parents were giving their infants the hepatitis B vaccine on day one, and families were not following the CDC vaccine schedule but were spacing out the time between shots or avoiding them altogether.

In another paper, "Deaths Reported to the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System, United States, 1997–2013," the CDC researchers reported, "For child [0-17] death reports, 79.4% received >1 vaccine on the same day; among infants … 86.2% received >1 vaccine."

Despite this, the authors concluded, "No concerning pattern was noted among death reports submitted to VAERS during 1997–2013."

Nonetheless, they stated that, because vaccine use is expanding and new vaccines are being added to the childhood schedule, "it is important to continue to monitor death reports to VAERS."

In a peer-reviewed study published in PubMed, researchers studied infant mortality rates around the world and found a "high statistically significant correlation between increasing numbers of vaccine doses and increasing infant mortality rates."

The authors reported 33 nations had infant mortality rates lower than the U.S., which has the highest vaccination rate of any country.

Mumper told The Defender, "Evidence of striking temporal correlations between vaccines and SIDS in a series of studies should lead to people in high places to consider vaccines as a cause of SIDS in a subset of babies."

Kirsch's article links to additional studies confirming the SIDS-vaccine connection.

'I've seen what happens to people who tell the truth'

Although Jennifer chose to appear fully visible in the video interview, Kirsch asked her why she hadn't yet disclosed her full identity.

She responded that sharing this kind of information could "shut down an entire industry," adding, "I've seen what happens to people who tell the truth."

She and her husband discussed the potential impact on their children's safety in light of her stepping forward to share what she knows.

She paraphrased what she recalled Ice Cube saying during a recent Tucker Carlson interview: "If you go along with the agendas, nobody bothers you, you're fine. It's when you tell the truth that you get in trouble."

Jennifer and Kirsch discussed the blowback to doctors and nurses who've been fired over the past several years for telling the truth.

Parents of children injured or killed by vaccines who are passionate activists also "get treated like garbage," she said.

Mumper wrote such parents must feel like "modern-day Cassandras" because their observation of the obvious connection between the administration of vaccines and the deterioration of their children's health within one or two days was most often received as unwelcome news if not outright disbelieved.

Not all parents make the connection, however, or necessarily want to. Jennifer said she recognized the difficult position her testimony puts some parents in.

She said:

> "I see parents on both sides of it with vaccine-injured children. Some of them hold on to the lie so strong, because admitting that this was true means that they had a hand in their child's death or their child's injury. And I understand that. I understand how hard it is to come to grips with that."

The current medical consensus on SIDS may also leave parents with the impression they contributed to their child's death.

Why has it taken this long to determine that the vaccine injections given to our babies create anaphylactic shock and the babies die and they created a new disease to account for it called SIDS when in reality it is the vaccine produced by the drug manufacturer! We need RFKJr to have center stage to tell the American people the truth!

It hasn't. For those of that already suspected it it is no surprise. Common sense.

But to any corporate mainstream entity, they are correlating all of any 'sudden death' and doing 20/20 hindsight. Yes, they are way behind in stating the obvious. But haven't fooled many.

Don't forget the flat head syndrome- thanks to "sleep on their back" SIDS "prevention" program. They had to invent a new death category to explain why infant mortality continued to rise.

Yes vaccination is attempted murder for profit and no benign for 220 years now. They suppressed the smallpox cure 400 or so years ago and poisoned their patients with poison disguised as medicine killing 18% and then suppressed the knowledge it was a non contagious sanitary disease while spreading smallpox with vaccination killing 25,000 babies in 1880 England and Wales. GB Shaw said it was attempted murder in 1911. They then suppressed the nutritional medicine cure for all viral disease 80 years ago killing millions then put mercury in DPT to create disease they called autism

The fact you have to be over 60% damaged to get any damage payment just tells you they are sociopaths as most paediatricians have to be

As to sids it is obviously vaccination deaths some 16,000 yearly USA using infant mortality stats.

Not only that they suppressed the cot death prevention with vitamin c

And of course the police judges media coroners pathologists and allopaths etc are in on the conspiracy

Now the masses are falling for SADS!!!!!

We are being farmed like all domesticated conventionally raised crops and feed animals!

Your Vet will talk about your dog's gut microbiome, but try to discuss your gut-brain axis with your pediatrician or any straight up allopathic doc!

The assault is coming from all sides! Just look at the top stocks, all toxic chemicals and then our tax dollars subsidize sugar! As well as all the corporate welfare/subsidies which are responsible for our and the Eatth's poor health!

Over and over the Government so-called protective agencies approve first and then well after the harm has been done and in most cases irreparably so, to the Earth and the countless lives lost, do they then baffle the masses with bs and convince them they are sickened with some "disease", and the chemical assault had nothing to do with it...then the remedy is yet another drug! My daughter got the DTaP vaccine and the next morning she was autistic. The pediatrician was not concerned about it and told us to go ahead and get all of the other shots on the CDC schedule. But we stopped the shots and got a new pediatrician who showed with a DNA test that her injuries were due to mitochondrial damage from vaccines. Now, 8 years later, she is doing very well and is showing very few autistic symptoms.

The mitochondrial explanation was introduced for a vaccine injury compensation case in the 90's, yet still no routine genetic testing for this susceptibility to injection causation of high fever and inflammation resulting in brain injury- before mandatory inoculations are begun in infancy. They don't attempt to "make vaccines safer" by identifying those "most at risk", since it's not possible.

National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act. It sounds like it's supposed to protect children, not the pharmaceutical industry. How ironic. Vaccination is a lot like Russian Roulette. Now we have SADS; Sudden Adult Death Syndrome, after the covid vaccines started. But "they" just can't quite figure out the underlying cause. And all the healthy young athletes dying suddenly. It can't be the vaccines! We need to take back the power Pharma enjoys. This is criminal. How can those people live with themselves?

Yes, indeed. I remember that many years ago there was a case in New York State of a family in which both of the mother's two children died when they were infants. Their deaths were classified as SIDS. The police charged the mother with murdering both infants. Big pharma has blood on its hands and has had for a long time.

Wow, the pharmaceutical industry has such a choke-hold over the CDC, the AAP, doctors and even policemen and coroners that they justify to themselves killing babies and gaslighting parents. Doctors tell themselves, "I can't let parents start questioning vaccines because it would jeopardize the vaccine program." Shame on them! Its OK to kill a certain portion of the population and lie about the cause? Del Big Tree explains in Placebo Lie (link below) that pharma companies love vaccines because they are a drug everybody is supposed to take, which means huge income streams and a guaranteed market. SIDS is the leading cause of deaths among babies!! THEY DON'T CARE!

This is personal to me because my little sister died of SIDS at three months old. She got a DPT shot, cried uncontrollably for 2 days and then died. The doctors questioned my parents as if it was their fault. This evil has got to be stopped.

SOMETIMES THE CONTEXT OF SOMETHING CAN HELP EXPLAIN THE WHY OF IT.

CONSIDER THAT 33% OF THE POPULATION ARE JUST GOING TO ABSOLUTELY DO WHAT THEY'RE TOLD BY THE "AUTHORITIES" - THEY WON'T DISCUSS OR DEBATE IT, THEY WON'T WASTE ANY TIME...THEY WILL JUST DO IT. THIS GROUP CANNOT BE MOVED BY ANYONE.

AND 33% WILL FOLLOW WHAT THEY FEEL IS THE "HERD" SO THAT MEANS WHAT THEY PERCEIVE THAT EVERYONE ELSE, THE "MAJORITY" ARE DOING. IF THEY PERCEIVE THAT EVERYONE IS VACCINATING THEN THEIR SUBCONSCIOUS TAKES OVER AS IT SOLVES THE PROBLEM FOR MAXIMUM SAFETY AND SELF-PRESERVATION AND FOLLOWS THE MAJORITY ... THE HERD.

THE LAST 33% LOOK AT EVERYTHING CRITICALLY, QUESTION EVERYTHING, DEBATE EVERYTHING, REMAIN SKEPTICAL, AND LOOK FOR THE TRUTH. THIS SEGMENT THINKS THEY CAN "CONVINCE" THE HERD FOLLOWERS WITH LOGIC AND SCIENCE...BUT THE HERD FOLLOWERS DON'T DO ANYTHING CONSCIOUSLY.

AND THE PEOPLE PUTTING ON THIS GLOBAL CAMPAIGN KNOW THIS VERY WELL. THEIR TARGET IS THE MIDDLE 33%...THE HERD FOLLOWERS. THEY FOCUS ON CREATING

This is the sort of stuff that drives me nuts. I describe myself as a very much lapsed statistician. 50 years ago my PhD dissertation was heavily statistical in nature--pattern recognition. Never did much since. I retain some understanding.
While correlation isn't causation, it sure as hades is a "signal". What is going on?
Is it bad data--this person's numbers aren't correct? Is it something else--there is something else that causes both? The first lecture in statistics, long ago, the professor noted that the salaries of Methodist ministers and the price of rum correlated well over the last few decades. Reason--inflation, everything went up over that time frame.
What drives me crazy is that this should be a four alarm fire. A major effort should be launched, immediately to find out what is going on. Is it bad data. Is it something else.
Something is causing this--what.
As I said, I am a recovering statistician with very rusty skills. Give me the data and I will figure it out. The vaccination numbers are huge. No shortage of data--if it is collected and someone looks at it.
Again, with the caveat that I don't believe nearly anything i read in the MSM. My understanding is that the Amish don't vaccinate, period. What is the SIDS rate among that community?

My guess is that the Amish have essentially zero SIDS. From what I have read, their death rate from COVID was zero. While not a huge population, there are enough of them that they constitute a "natural experiment". One of the first items on my "four alarm fire" investigation would be an in-depth study of what chronic diseases they do and do not suffer from.

Please correct me if I am wrong, but it's my understanding that the 1986 legislation granting immunity to pharmaceutical companies for vaccines on the children's schedule required "safety studies" be conducted and reported every year or two… and that, to date, ZERO of these studies have been done! If this is true, shouldn't the immunity provided be null and void since a condition of that immunity was never satisfied???

The...(CDC) states that "studies have found that vaccines do not cause and are not linked to SIDS."

Studies can find anything that they are rigged to find. The FDA's ACTIV-6 authorized Together Trial on Ivermectin was rigged to fail, by under dosing and shortening the duration of treatment.

An accounting of SIDS deaths, which determined that about 50% occurred within 48 hours of a vaccination, was a clear temporal connection to the vaccination.

The CDC has an agenda. That agenda stands in the way them being truthful with the public. I don't believe CDC claims anymore.

The alphabet agencies are all heavily financially tied to Big Pharma and especially vaccines. They need to be disbanded and broken down into separate entities tasked with investigating these products. No one involved should be permitted to have any financial ties to any pharmaceutical company or its products.
